THE 60-SECOND BRIEF

Owned Demand

Give seller and buyer enquiries the right next step.

For whom

Estate agencies and brokerage teams developing channels alongside portals.

When to use it

A valuation enquiry is treated as a listing instruction, or a portal click as a viewing request.

Tool inside

Separate seller and buyer cards, each with a fully completed example.

Your result

Route each contact to a conversation, useful information or a scheduled follow-up.

DECISION SCENE · ILLUSTRATIVE

Two signals, two jobs

A homeowner asks what their house might be worth but gives no sale date. A buyer clicks a portal listing, yet is looking in another area. Both could become worthwhile contacts; neither is ready for an assumed closing meeting.

Decision for the team

Owned demand is a maintained channel through your content, site, referrals and follow-up, alongside portals. The value lies in choosing the next action for each signal.

WHERE THE JOURNEY BREAKS

Four transitions. Four visible signals.

01 Presentation → enquiry

Warning sign: The valuation page promises advice; the form captures only contact details.

02 Enquiry → triage

Warning sign: Seller and buyer enquiries enter one queue.

03 Triage → follow-up

Warning sign: Early research gets the same call as a concrete appointment.

04 Follow-up → handoff

Warning sign: The assigned agent cannot see the reason or agreed action.

DECISION RULE

Choose the correct route

Seller

Ask why they made contact and when a decision might happen. Valuation interest need not mean an intention to sell.

Buyer

Check search profile, actual property and time window. A click alone does not establish viewing readiness.

Both

Ask only what changes the next action. Financing status is a broad voluntary indication, only when relevant.

QUICK EXERCISE

Sort six contacts

Take three seller and three buyer enquiries. Complete the relevant card. Choose a conversation now, information first or a follow-up date. After seven days, check whether each agreed action happened.

SET PRIORITIES

A scorecard without false precision

Yes = 2 · Partly = 1 · No = 0. Add all five answers (0–10 points).

1. Is the seller or buyer route clear?

□ 2 □ 1 □ 0

2. Is the reason known beyond a click or form title?

□ 2 □ 1 □ 0

3. Is timing known or explicitly open?

□ 2 □ 1 □ 0

4. Do you have the property details needed for the next action?

□ 2 □ 1 □ 0

5. Are ownership and the next date agreed?

□ 2 □ 1 □ 0

0–3: fix the missing handoff first

4–7: test one bottleneck and measure again

8–10: keep the process; inspect exceptions

ONE SEVEN-DAY IMPROVEMENT

Improve one question. Then check.

Day 1

Team lead selects three anonymised enquiries per route.

Day 2

Agents add reason, timing and open point to each card.

Days 3–4

Choose a call, information or follow-up for each case.

Days 5–7

One owner checks all six actions and improves one intake question.

Visible output: six cards, two route rules and one improved first-contact question.

DECISION SCENE · ILLUSTRATIVE

A later conversation can still be valuable

Illustrative: A homeowner wants a valuation for orientation. The team sends a short list of needed property details and agrees a later check-in without assuming a sale. A portal buyer receives two better-matched listings and a question about timing. Both contacts remain supported without being counted as immediate appointments.

For your team

Route each contact to a conversation, useful information or a scheduled follow-up.

FOR YOUR NEXT TEAM MEETING

Start with three questions.

01

Valuation interest is a reason to talk, not confirmed selling intent.

02

A portal click is a signal, not confirmed viewing readiness.

03

Owned channels and portals can work together; the next action matters.

NEXT STEP

Request a 30-minute Project Check

Bring a project page or anonymised enquiry and your current handoff route. We will examine one transition and give you a prioritised next action. No sales result is promised.

Your ten-minute result

The worksheet works without NovaLure. A Project Check is an optional way to review the full journey.
